Course Description

Have you ever wondered why there are few old-growth forests in New England? What Williamstown looked like before Williams was founded? How ideas about environmental preservation have changed over time? These are some of the questions we will explore in this course, which introduces students to the discipline of Environmental History through New England examples. During the semester we will: (1) read and discuss scholarship on the environmental history of New England and the world; (2) use case studies and field trips to examine how past environments are represented in museum exhibits, digital projects, and physical landscapes; (3) develop a research paper based on original archival research.

Course Organization

This class meets twice per week for 75 minutes. Class time will include facilitated discussions, in-class assignments, and field trips. Please note that one field trip falls outside of regular class time: we will drive to Mystic Seaport on the night of 4/26 and return the night of 4/27. These activities are required to pass the course, so please check your schedule now and resolve any conflicts.

Readings listed on the schedule below must be completed before each class meeting. Come prepared to talk about each reading in detail, hard copy in hand.

I recommend that you dedicate one notebook in which to keep reading, class, and fieldtrip notes. You may be called upon to speak from these notes.

Office Hours

To sign up to visit office hours, please email me. Come to office hours with questions about readings, lectures, the environmental studies program, or just to chat.

Required Texts

The required books, listed below, are available at the Williams bookstore and online. The course reader is available for pick-up from the Center for Environmental Studies.

- William Cronon, Changes in the Land: Indians, Colonists, and the Ecology of New England (Hill and Wang, 2003 [1983]).
- Tom Wessels, Forest Forensics: A Field Guide to Reading the Forested Landscape (Countryman Press, 2010).
- Michael Rawson, Eden on the Charles: The Making of Boston (Harvard University Press, 2010).
- Theodore Steinberg, Nature Incorporated: Industrialization and the Waters of New England (Cambridge University Press, 1999).
- Andrew Lipman, The Saltwater Frontier: Indians and the Contest for the American Coast (Yale University Press, 2015).
- Henry David Thoreau, Walden (the annotated edition by Jeffrey Cramer, Yale University Press, 2004 [1854]).
- Lisa Brooks, The Common Pot: The Recovery of Native Space in the Northeast (University of Minnesota Press, 2008).

Assignments

The relative weight of assignments is summarized below. Students must complete all course assignments in order to pass the course. Each component of your final score is briefly described in this syllabus and more detailed guidelines will be distributed in class.

Assignment	Percent of final grade
Participation	20%
Response papers	5% each (30% total)
Workshop 1	5%
Workshop 2	5%
Annotated Bibliography	5%
Workshop 3	10%
Final Research Paper	20%
Reflection Paper	5%

Participation

Attendance is required. Absences or habitual lateness will decrease your final grade. You cannot pass this class if you miss more than 3 class meetings.

Participation encompasses in-class writing assignments and active, regular contributions to class discussions. Class discussions are a collaborative process. Participation that falls within the “A” range shows me that you are keeping up with the work, thinking through the issues that each set of texts raises, and able to pose questions that take our conversation in new and worthwhile directions. It also shows your willingness to listen, to consider other students’ points of view, and to respond to them respectfully.

Readings listed on the schedule below must be completed before each class meeting. Come prepared to talk about each reading in detail, hard copy in hand.

I highly recommend that you dedicate one notebook in which to keep reading, class, and fieldtrip notes. You may be called upon to speak from these notes.

Response Papers

Over the semester you are required to write 6 response papers (approx. 500 words each). Response papers serve four important functions. Besides preparing you well for in-class discussion, they are an occasion to practice active reading: reading in which you ask questions as you read and put yourself into conversation with the author. They also help me gauge how well you comprehend the material. Finally, a response paper begins to formulate the questions that a longer analytical essay might address.

These papers are due in hard copy at the end of the class period to which they refer and they will not be accepted late. Further instructions will be distributed in class.

Research Project

During the semester, you will develop and execute an independent research project. Each student will work directly with primary and secondary sources. Three in-class workshops and an annotated bibliography accomplish preparatory work for the project. Further instructions for each step of the research process will be distributed in class.

Reflection Paper

At the end of the semester you will write a final reflection paper. It should contain a thoughtful and detailed examination of your final project and your class participation.

The letter should address the following questions:

- How did your understanding of environmental history change throughout the semester?
- What are the strengths of your final project? If you had more time to work on it, what would you improve? What questions are you left with?
- How did your final project contribute to your understanding of the course?
- How does your final project contribute to the field of environmental history?
- What topics in environmental history might you be interested in exploring in the future?

Your self-evaluation has two audiences. I will of course read it carefully; but you are, yourself, an important audience: This is your chance to reflect on how the texts, our discussions, and your research have affected your thinking.

Policies

Grades

The course grading system coincides with the Williams College system of grades, where A=excellent; B=good; C=fair; D=passing; and E=failing. Note that the grades I assign represent my evaluation of the work you turn in. They in no way indicate my opinion of you as a person or the views you hold and share.

Honor Code

Please re-acquaint yourself with the college Honor Code (<http://sites.williams.edu/honor-system/>). Williams takes charges of cheating and plagiarism very seriously, and either can result in your dismissal. Cheating is taking advantage of the work of others. Plagiarism is representing the work of others as your own without giving appropriate credit. If you are uncertain how the Honor Code applies to your work in this course—or if you are unsure how to distinguish between legitimate collaboration with your colleagues and academic dishonesty—please ask me.

Electronics

Unless you make special arrangements with me at the beginning of the semester, laptops are not allowed in class. Cell phones must be in airplane mode (not vibrate) and put away.

Resources

Students with disabilities of any kind who may need accommodations for this course are encouraged to contact Dr. GL Wallace (Director of Accessible Education) at 413-597-4672.

Students experiencing mental or physical health challenges that are significantly affecting their academic work or well-being are encouraged to contact me and to speak with a dean so we can help you find the right resources. The deans can be reached at 413-597-4171.

As a Williams student, you can use the free tutoring services provided by the Peer Academic Support network. Step-by-step instructions for scheduling tutoring sessions are on the Peer Tutoring Program webpage (<http://academic-resources.williams.edu/peer-tutor-program/>).

The Writing Workshop (<http://writing-programs.williams.edu/writing-workshop/>) is available to all students free of charge. Drop in sessions are located in the foyer of Stetson-Sawyer library. You can also schedule hour-long appointments through the online scheduler. The Writing Workshop also offers a Writing Partner service to support students who may need more attention and guidance than can be provided within a regular Writing Workshop session.

Hale Polebaum-Freeman is the library liaison for environmental studies and is also available to provide guidance. They can be reached at hop1@williams.edu.
